CELEBRATING PEPPERDINE UNIVERSITY'S FIRST ELECTRIC VEHICLE CHARGING STATIONS

Pepperdine University's sustainability initiatives got a boost with the campus' first electric vehicle (EV) chargers, courtesy of Chevrolet, through CBS EcoMedia's EcoAd program. Three 240-volt EV charging stations were installed at two busy locations to provide students, faculty, staff, and visitors free vehicle charging.

A ribbon-cutting event was held at the Seaver Visitor Parking Lot to celebrate this unique partnership. At the event, representatives from each organization shared how the project came to completion. Following the remarks, Pepperdine president, Andrew Benton, initiated the first charge before taking a spin around campus in a Chevy Volt. Pepperdine University's new EV chargers will help reduce CO₂ emissions by approximately 16,500 kgs per year.
